ENGLAND AND AMERICA WARN HUERTA: KILL AMERICANS IN MEXICO AT YOUR PERIL.

[BY MEXICAN CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

VERA CRUZ, April 26.—In an attempt to obtain definite information of the situation of the Americans cut off in Mexico City and for whose safety the gravest fears are held here, Commander Tweedy of the British navy started for the capital this afternoon.

He bore with him dispatches from Admiral Sir Christopher Cradock, to the Acting British Minister Sir Lionel Carden. Ostensibly the carrying of these dispatches was the object of Tweedy's journey, but the real reason was to satisfy the American authorities here as to the fate of their countrymen who had been barred by Huerta's orders from fleeing.

Also he is to convey to Gen. Huerta, through Carden, an emphatic intimation that he personally, together with all the members of his government, will be held responsible for any American lives sacrificed wantonly not only in the capital, but in other parts of the republic as well.

The strongest possible representations are to be made to Huerta that any violation of the rules of civilized warfare through which American men, women and children may suffer will not only provoke the reprobation of the whole world, but will bring retaliatory measures of the sternest description from the United States.

Tweedy's instructions are to have Carden mince no words in putting the case before Huerta. The expectation is that the two Englishmen may be able to prevail upon Huerta not only to release the prominent Americans whom, it is reported, he has under arrest, but to permit all of the Americans in the capital to leave for Vera Cruz.

Some of those who it is reported are now under arrest are C. H. M. y Agramonte, president of the American Colony Society; Krehbel M. Van Zandt, Charles F. Yeager, manager of the American Club; E. L. Beck, the president, and Burton W. Wilson, the secretary, and other officers of the Mexico City Banking Company, and George L. McCarthy, president, and his fellow officers of the Mercantile Bank.

O'SHAUGHNESSY'S STORY OF THE LAST FEW DAYS IN THE MEXICAN CAPITAL.

[BY MEXICAN CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

VERA CRUZ, April 26.—Here is Nelson O'Shaughnessy's own story of the last few days in the Mexican capital:

"It became apparent early in the developments arising from the Tampico flag incident that the situation was fraught with ominous possibilities, although it was my opinion almost to the last minute that Huerta would recede from a position that made it impossible for Washington to adjust matters as Huerta wanted them adjusted.

"You must know that had Huerta waived his insistence upon a return salute to the Mexican flag by the United States—which act would have implied a recognition by our government—the Tampico incident would have been unquestionably cleared. But even if he had done so, it was the general opinion of most of the Americans in the capital that it would have been merely a temporary postponement of what had come to be regarded as inevitable, namely, some action by the United States along the lines of intervention. I cannot dispute the fact that this impression existed.

"The situation was rapidly growing worse in the country, and Huerta was growing less able to resist successfully the rebels, to say nothing of making headway against them.

"The loss of Torreón was a great blow to the Federal government, although it tried its best to minimize its importance. But it hurt and hurt badly. The Federals had not more than a remote chance of regaining Torreón unless the rebels choose to let them have it, so that you can see that Huerta's government was in a bad way when the Tampico incident occurred.

"When I received the first information of the arrest of the Dolphin's sailors and of Admiral Mayo's demands, which, by the way, came to me first through the Mexican Foreign Office, which had been communicated with by Gen. Zaragoza, before my information from Washington reached me, it was too late for me to do anything.

"That was Friday, April 10, and according to the time limit fixed by Admiral Mayo, satisfaction had to be given by 6 o'clock that night.

"We were in the midst of Holy Week holidays, and no one connected with the government worked.

"Portillo Rojas, the Minister of Foreign Affairs, was in Guadalupe and there was no one in authority excepting Senor Ruiz, the sub-secretary, who had never even met Huerta and who did not know him.

"After several hours' search I finally caught up with Huerta at his house, where he was taking a siesta. Not even my strongest representations of the extremity and urgency of the case could induce his aides to arouse him, so I was forced to go away and return again in an hour.

"When I finally did see Huerta we discussed the Tampico incident most amicably. His expressions indicated a considerable displeasure that the arrest of the Dolphin's people should have been permitted.

"He gave me the impression that he was much incensed at the stupidity of the officer who was responsible for it and who had added to Huerta's troubles by his blundering step.

"At the outset of the negotiations he displayed his customary reasonable disposition that he had theretofore shown when I was obliged to take up any matters with him relating to Americans or American interests in the territory under his control.

"When I saw Huerta I introduced Ruiz to him. After a brief

ORDER TO KILL ARMED MEXICANS ENDS SNIPING; GUNS GIVEN UP.

[BY MEXICAN CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

VERA CRUZ, April 26.—The drastic order of Admiral Fletcher that all natives bearing arms without right to do so immediately be killed, put effectively a stop to the sniping that had been going on since the occupation of Vera Cruz by the American men-of-war men.

Last night there were no shots heard. Sentries are placed on the roofs after curfew each evening, and this step has put a further obstacle in the way of the natives who have been taking shots at the marines and bluejackets from the housetops.

A battalion of the Michigan's bluejackets and marines on outpost duty had been bothered the last two nights by shooting from the cemetery on the outskirts of the town. A search of the burial grounds failed to show any Mexicans or any arms and ammunition. Then natives who passed through the grounds were always unarmed and seemingly inoffensive, yet the sniping kept up.

Last night an idea occurred to the commanding officer. He had noticed the unusually large number of funeral corteges, so he stopped one of them and opened the coffin. Instead of a corpse he found, as he expected, the casket stuffed full of rifles and cartridges.

With this as a suggestion, the Michigan's men made a search of the open graves and found in them armed men waiting nightfall to begin firing on the guard. The Mexicans were arrested and the arms confiscated.

If all the other Mexican points are as well supplied with arms and ammunition as is Vera Cruz, Huerta need be in no fear of lack of equipment. He can afford to ignore the imports that have been stopped by the American embargo.

Vera Cruz has turned up an immense quantity and it is being added to hourly by the citizens who are surrendering their weapons because of Admiral Fletcher's proclamation. In certain sections of the city the Americans found big storerooms filled with weapons.

Receipts are being given for each weapon turned in. It is understood they all will be returned to their owners eventually. The surrendered pieces are labelled with the name and address of the owner and he is given an individual receipt. All day long a double line stretched out from the municipal building, where the weapons are being received. So far, more than 1800 receipts have been given out, and there are twice as many still to be issued.

MARTIAL LAW IN VERA CRUZ.

VERA CRUZ, April 26.—Vera Cruz is under martial law tonight. Rear-Admiral Frank F. Fletcher, commanding the American naval forces on shore, issued a proclamation today to this effect, and the last opportunity Mexicans had for handling their own affairs in Vera Cruz under their own laws disappeared. Admiral Fletcher determined there should be no more quibbling with the Mexican officials regarding forms of government. Until further notice the residents of this port will be judged by military law. This proclamation makes Rear-Admiral Fletcher absolute ruler ashore.

An order that all arms be turned in by noon today brought to the headquarters of the provost marshal hundreds of small arms and stacks of rifles. The city was entirely quiet last night.

A large number of local Mexican officials have reported their willingness to resume their duties of offices under the supervision of the Americans. The American officials named to assist in the supervision of the municipal government are: Commander H. O. Stuckney of the Prairie, captain of the port; Fleet Surgeon L. W. Spradling, sanitary inspector; Commander D. F. Sellers of the Arkansas, provost marshal; Commander John

M. Luby of the South Carolina, director of the postoffice.

Robert Diaz, Mayor of Vera Cruz, is among those who have agreed to reopen their offices and it has been arranged that the public schools shall be reopened tomorrow.

The efforts of Rear-Admiral Fletcher, supplemented by those of the British commander, Rear-Admiral Sir Christopher Cradock, and the French and German Consuls and private citizens to bring about the departure from the interior of all foreigners who wish to leave, are being continued energetically, but hope of getting out more than a small part of those left is diminishing hourly. The Federal Gen. Maas has established his headquarters at Soledad.

REFUGEES FROM TAMPICO BITTERLY SCORE WILSON'S POLICY OF HESITATION.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

GALVESTON (Texas) April 26.—About 2100 refugees from Mexico are now in Galveston Harbor on four ships, waiting for release from quarantine. Most of the refugees are from Tampico. Besides those arriving here two yachts have taken fifty or sixty to Port Arthur, and the transport Hancock, which took 850 marines from New Orleans to Vera Cruz, has 800 on board and is making for some American port. Those who come from Tampico are bitter toward the Washington government for its hesitating policy of non-aggressiveness.

The latest vessels arriving were the torpedo tender Dixie, with about 600 refugees, which reached here about noon, and the battleship Connecticut, Capt. John S. Knapp, which reached here about two hours later with 500 refugees. At least half of those on the Dixie were women, many of them having only the clothing they had on when ordered from the city.

Lieut. J. S. Abbott has made them as comfortable as possible, the officers of the ship giving up quarters to women, and sailors sharing everything with the refugees, most of whom are penniless. A few have Mexican paper money, but are willing to exchange it in rolls for tobacco.

Mrs. Hodgson, a passenger, corroborated the story brought here yesterday by the steamship Cyclops of the attack by a Mexican mob on Americans in a hotel at Tampico, and the withdrawal of the mob after Capt. Von Kohler of the German cruiser Dresden had threatened to shell the city.

The outbreak happened after the Dolphin and Des Moines, part of the American war fleet, had steamed away from Tampico.

Mrs. Hodgson said she is from Alabama and is of fighting stock. She was in her home in Tampico when trouble started, and seeing that the American flag was being mistreated by Mexicans, she raised an old Confederate flag she had in a trunk and the Mexicans, not knowing what nation it represented, and evidently acting on instructions to molest only Americans, left her alone.

She said that 600 men in Tampico, Americans and other foreigners, had offered to enlist with the American forces to take the town from the Mexicans, and some thirty or more of those on board the Dixie begged Lieut. Abbott for the privilege of enlisting in the navy.

The battleship Connecticut, flagship of Admiral Mayo, arrived this afternoon with some five hundred more, all from Tampico, and as far as officers of that ship dared to speak of the Tampico incident they were very bitter in denunciation of the action of the United States government in permitting the Dolphin and Des Moines to leave the river and place the Americans at the mercy of the Mexicans.

The purchasing officer of the Connecticut said that the ship had been receiving provisions from within the rebel lines, the rebels having permitted this only on condition that the provisions be delivered to the American ships. While people in the city have been deprived of vegetables and such food, the ships were able to obtain a fair supply.

One of the officers on the Connecticut said that it was possible at one time to have captured Tampico in two hours with a very slight loss of men, but he thought it could not be done today in so short a time. The Federals have made the boast that Americans will never be permitted to take the town, as they would turn oil wells into the Panuco River and set the oil on fire, which would make it impossible for any ship to enter the river and would probably take a long time to conquer.

EUROPE'S IMPATIENCE AT AMERICAN SLOWNESS.

Former Assistant Secretary of State Loomis Declares There Is a Strong Feeling of Unrest Abroad Caused by the Administration's Policy—Says the Murder and Robbery of Foreigners Should Have Been Stopped.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN FRANCISCO BUREAU OF THE TIMES, April 26.—Francis B. Loomis of Ohio, former Assistant Secretary of State, former Chief of Consular Bureau and for fifteen years a prominent figure in Pan-American diplomacy, arrived here today from Washington, where before leaving he discussed informally the peace overtures for the settlement of the Mexican trouble presented Saturday to the Secretary of State by the diplomatic representative of Argentina, Brazil and Chile.

Loomis has also just completed a tour of Europe and Great Britain upon an international mission of a confidential nature, which placed at his disposal inside information of the official attitudes of the European governments regarding President Wilson's Mexican policy.

In a statement today, Loomis placed emphasis upon two points, which, considering his long experience and intimate knowledge of Pan-American and international affairs, are of high importance in the present conflict between the United States and Mexico.

He declared: First, that the President had taken a narrow ground upon which to base his military demonstration against Mexico and that a sufficiently broad ground and abundant reasons for war are to be found in the atrocious abuses and outrages upon American citizens and American interests, and that the Mexican people, and not Gen. Huerta, must be impressed with the fact that their country shall be a safe place for the lawful and proper residence of American citizens and other foreigners.

Second, that President Wilson, in asking the other foreign governments to give him a free hand in disciplining Gen. Huerta, had caused the American government to assume the responsibility of protecting foreigners in Mexico; that a feeling of unrest and impatience had developed in Europe and England over the fact that nothing had been done under the policy of "watchful waiting."

The foreign governments, said Loomis, had been forced to see their people outraged and murdered without being able to offer them the aid and reparation that, under ordinary circumstances, would have been speedily and forcefully extended. Another murder like that of Benton by Gen. Villa would so have inflamed the English public that the government would have been forced to definite action, he said.

"From what I know personally of Gen. Huerta," said Loomis, "and from what I have heard of the expressions of Mexican statesmen having intimate knowledge of the character of the provisional President, and of affairs of his government, it is doubtful if he will accept the offer of mediation made by the Washington diplomatic representatives of Argentina, Brazil and Chile."

"Gen. Huerta will probably consider the overtures as coming from an unfriendly source. The governments of Brazil, Argentina and Chile are the three big powers in Pan-America besides the United States, that have not recognized the Huerta government. Gen. Huerta would not consider them neutral in the matter, but rather as holding the same view as the United States with regard to his long attempt to administer the government of Mexico.

"Gen. Huerta has generally conducted himself in a dignified manner as regards his foreign relations and throughout the present trouble he has done nothing to cause any loss in the dignity of his attitude toward the United States."

"I think we have abundant reasons for proceeding against Gen. Huerta and his government, but I think our actions should have been based on broader grounds than those set forth by President Wilson. The President has taken a very narrow view and shaped a narrow course in making the Tampico incident a cause for reprisals by the military force."

"However, there is sufficient ground for war and the proceedings of war. It should be inaugurated on the ground of correcting the abuses and outrages on peaceful, law-abiding American citizens in Mexico. The whole Mexican people and the different factions must be made to understand that Mexico must be a safe place for Americans and other foreigners to reside conformably to the laws of the republic."

Discussing further the general policy of President Wilson with regard to Mexico, Loomis said:

"The United States got into an embarrassing situation by not recognizing Gen. Huerta's government early. Failing to recognize Huerta, President Wilson asked the other great governments to give the United States a free hand in dealing with the man. That placed upon us the responsibility of protecting foreigners and foreign interests in Mexico."

"The plan has not gotten anywhere. Foreign governments have seen there nationals outraged and murdered and their property damaged and destroyed, and they have had to exercise a great deal of patience under President Wilson's policy of 'watchful waiting.' The feeling of unrest has increased and the crisis has fast approached where the foreign nations would demand more forceful measures."

"The knowledge of this feeling has made itself felt in Washington and the President has perceived that something must be done to clear the atmosphere. Armed interference in Mexican affairs or open declaration of war should be based, however, on some cause broad enough to accomplish effectively the real design of the United States. Failure to salute formally the American flag after an apology for an alleged insult has been tendered, is not sufficient cause."

"Another thing, the Mexican people are not ready for a form of constitutional government similar to that in force in the United States and the more progressive governments of South America. There must be a strong, dominating person at the head of the government, of such a type as can be evolved only from revolution and rebellion. Gen. Huerta is the product of revolutions and the strongest man produced since Diaz."

"Suppose Huerta be eliminated, as the United States insists. Gen. Villa has the greatest prospect of supplanting him, and he is a man whose life has been that of a bandit, robber and an assassin, and one whom the United States has been secretly supporting."

Loomis said that in the Eastern and Central States he found no feverish excitement over the war measures, yet there existed apparently a calm determination to support President Wilson. The only excited place, he said, is Washington, where members of Congress insist upon uttering the usual number of patriotic speeches.

Where California Interests Are Menaced.

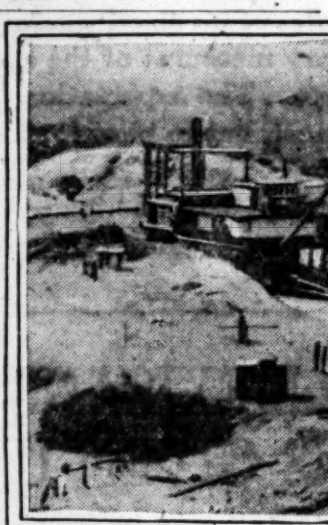

Pacific Coast's Stand.

MINNEAPOLIS, April 26.—"The people on the Pacific Coast want us to go through with our undertaking with President Huerta," Assistant Secretary of the Navy Franklin D. Roosevelt said, as he passed through Minneapolis on his way from Seattle to Washington. "I guess it means war, and we are ready," he added.

Root Pledges Support.

WASHINGTON, April 26.—In an address at the annual banquet of the American Society of International Law here last night Senator Root of New York in referring to the Mexican situation expressed his confidence in and pledged his support to President Wilson.

Refugees Thank Kaiser.

GALVESTON (Tex.), April 26.—When the refugee ship Esperanza arrived late last night from Vera Cruz and Tampico some of its passengers handed the quarantine boat a cablegram of thanks to be sent to the Emperor of Germany for protection given Americans by the German cruiser Dresden at Tampico on Tuesday.

Deserters Try to Enlist.

SALT LAKE CITY, April 26.—A half-dozen men who have deserted at various periods from the navy, yesterday applied for enlistment. They will be sent to San Francisco to undergo court-martial with recommendations that in view of their voluntary return to the flag, their punishment be made light.

Powder Magazine Halted.

EL PASO (Tex.), April 26.—Armed Mexicans are reported to have raided a private powder magazine at Yuleta, twelve miles east of here, this afternoon. Deputy sheriffs are said to have fired on them. Troop A, Thirteenth Cavalry, is reported to have rushed to the scene.

Half Fares for Refugees.

FT. WORTH (Tex.), April 26.—Half-fare rates for all refugees from Mexico were granted yesterday by the Gould lines on receipt of an emergency request from Secretary of State Bryan.

MILITIA DIG TRENCHES; TRAIN GUNS ON MEXICANS.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CALIFORNIA, April 26.—Within about ten feet of the international line trenches and breastworks were dug today by the Sixty-first United States Artillery for the emplacement of field guns, which are still trained on the Mexican garrison. This new movement forms a protection for the American field guns and the fact that American ranchers in the district just south of here are to be notified by a scheme of signals in case an emergency develop, are the important events here today. Aside from the fact that both the American and Mexican forces are continually strengthening their positions and the Mexicans are said to be obtaining additional recruits or conscripts at a rapid rate here today, in spite of the calm attitude maintained by the people, there is considerable preparation going ahead for the protection of Americans, both here and in Mexico.

A flag pole had made its appearance for the first time on the town water tower and this pole is to be used as a means of signaling the Mexicans occupying the lands south of here of any danger that might develop. The tower is visible for many miles south and with the signals somewhat changed, the famous ride of Paul Revere may be emulated by cowboys in Mexico. A black flag, which would be visible in the night in daytime is the day signal and a red light, the night signal.

There is an undercurrent of doubt here as to the ultimate outcome of the assembling of armed forces here. The feeling is such that the slightest alteration might precipitate trouble. United States Troop L, in command of the regulars, today expressed uneasiness when a large number of spectators gathered back of the field gun emplacements. It was felt that the Mexicans might misunderstand the large gathering as many came here from all parts of the valley today and might fire into the crowd, thus injuring many women and children.

ANGELENOS ACT LIKE REGULARS.

Local Companies Make Good at Calexico Camp.

All Eager to Take Part in Some Real Action.

Men Kept Busy Patrolling the Mexican Border.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

CALIFORNIA, April 26.—The men of the Los Angeles National Guard companies doing border patrol duty here, have won the confidence of the residents and the praise of the regular army officers on duty at this place. Both Maj. Harry B. Light and Col. William G. Schrieber have received numerous compliments from the officers in the regular service on the conduct and efficiency of the Los Angeles soldiers. A number of visitors to the camp have taken the battalion for a command of regular infantry.

The citizen soldiers are not restless, although to the men, they have expressed a desire to be the first to get into real action. The traditions of the Seventh Regiment stretch back more than thirty years, and as never before the men of the organization are soldiers.

From the time the men left the Army in Los Angeles, they have all co-operated with their officers and rendered the most efficient service.

Maj. Light said yesterday that he believed all his men able to pass the most rigid physical examination. Most of the officers are veterans of the Spanish-American War and the few lieutenants, who do not wear the bronze cross of service, have been trained in the National Guard for many years.

Lieut. Underwood and Simon of Co. A, enlisted in the company in 1903, and have attended every encampment held in the State since that time and have gone up to their commissions only through long years of study and practical training. Lieut. Riley of Co. B is the only officer in the command who has not seen active service, but he is a military expert and has been schooled under Maj. Light ever since his company was organized about five years ago.

Lieut. Marx of Co. C, which is under command of Capt. James L. Irwin, graduated from an eastern military college and passed one of the highest examinations of any lieutenant ever commissioned in the regiment. Lieut. Urquhart of the same company was formerly in the artillery branch and in the National Guard in the East.

Lieut. Sidner of Co. F has held a commission for about four years. He went up from the ranks after the company was reorganized under the late Capt. Frederick Braden.

The men of the four Los Angeles companies are afraid that they will be ordered back to Los Angeles before they get into action. Maj. Light's battalion and Troop D, First Cavalry, U.S.A., arrived here, expecting immediate trouble from the Mexicans across the border. The situation was not as serious as reported, however.

Upon the arrival of the American troops, Col. Juan Lajero, commanding the Mexican Federal garrison at Mexicali, assured Col. Schrieber and Capt. Arthur Pollock, commander of Troop D, First United States Cavalry, that he would not attempt an attack on Calexico unless ordered to do so from headquarters at Mexico City; and even then, he said, warning would be given for the benefit of women and children here.

It is impossible to ascertain the exact number of men under Col. Lajero. The Mexicans are claimed by American civilians to have their position well fortified. Americans, who have been over the line during the past few days, say that about 400 men are under arms in the Cuartel at Mexicali.

Lajero has machine guns and 200 Mexican volunteers. Rumors have it that about 600 Mexican volunteers are to arrive from Tactate Sunday. The 400 Federal soldiers are mostly convict soldiers, according to residents of Mexicali. The volunteers, from Tactate are mostly mounted and are said to be clever with the rifle and rapid fighting men.

In addition to the Los Angeles infantrymen and regular cavalry troops, the Americans have the Sixty-first Company of Coast Artillery Corps under command of Capt. C. H. Hilton, numbering about 100 men, with four field pieces.

Squadrons from the Los Angeles companies are patrolling the border each night. The troops are drilling every morning and afternoon. The American companies are not allowed to leave the camp except on duty and during the hours between drills. They are kept busy in camp on details or police duty.

All the men here are in excellent physical condition. To date, not a man in the Los Angeles battalion has reported as being absent. The Colorado River water has been condemned for cooking and drinking. All the water used by the troops is hauled by the railroad in tank cars and carted to the company streets in barrels.

Col. Schrieber has given his personal attention to his men's mess and while the fare is coarse, the men are all well satisfied.

Capt. Warren J. Holden, commanding Co. A, was unable to get the two cooks for his company that he wanted, as the battalion left Los Angeles with such short notice. In the train coming down, W. E. Turner, a Los Angeles automobile man, and former first sergeant of the company, volunteered his services as a cook, and has handled the job like a veteran army kitchen mechanic.

Smallpox at Vera Cruz.

Many Cases Are Discovered Among the Natives; Quarters of Blue-jackets Ashore Shifted.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

VERA CRUZ, April 26.—Twenty cases of smallpox were found among the native population of the city yesterday. It is believed that fully twenty more will yet be discovered.

Although no serious trouble is feared, the shore-duty battalions of blue-jackets from the South Carolina, New Jersey and New Hampshire, which have been quartered in the Cuartel, have been shifted elsewhere because of their proximity to the discovered cases.

Sniping, which broke out again, was taken by the scout cruiser Chester and the marine advance ship Prairie. These are the ships which shelled the naval college during Wednesday's fighting, and then the Chester and the Prairie lie within easy rifle shot of shore.

MEXICANS LOOT ROSEDIA RANCH.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

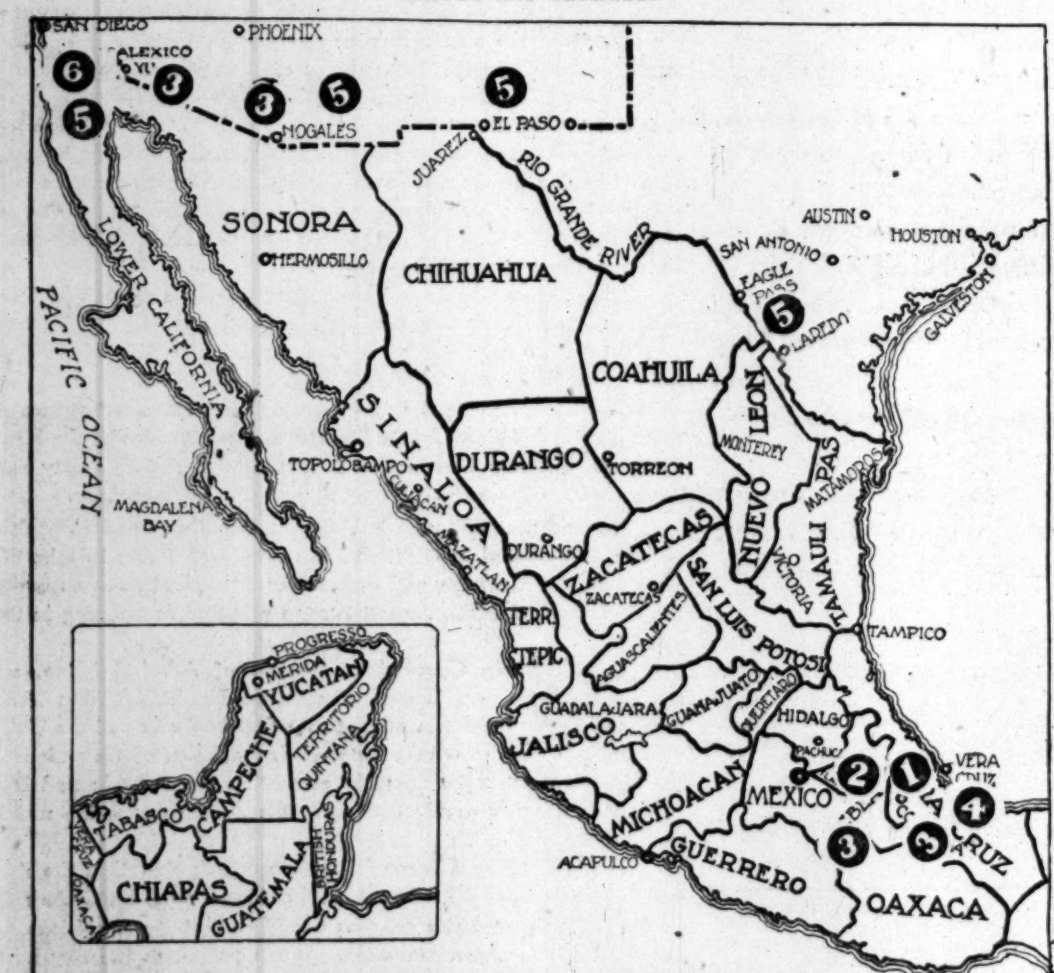

WASHINGTON, April 26.—As American, vouched for as reliable sources here, report that the Federal troops, about 200 miles distant from Eagle Pass, reported the Federal Cuartel, have been shifted elsewhere because of their proximity to the discovered cases.

Notice, according to a message to the State Department, has been given that all American property in that section would be seized by the Huerta forces.

It is impossible to ascertain the exact number of men under Col. Lajero. The Mexicans are claimed by American civilians to have their position well fortified. Americans, who have been over the line during the past few days, say that about 400 men are under arms in the Cuartel at Mexicali.

Lajero has machine guns and 200 Mexican volunteers. Rumors have it that about 600 Mexican volunteers are to arrive from Tancitaro Sunday. The 400 Federal soldiers are mostly convicted soldiers, according to residents of Mexicali. The volunteers from Tancitaro are mostly mounted and are said to be clever with the rifle and real fighting men.

In addition to the Los Angeles infantrymen and regular cavalry troops, the Americans have the Sixty-first (Central) Coast Artillery Corps under command of Capt. C. H. Hilton, numbering about 100 men, with four field pieces.

Soldiers from the Los Angeles companies are patrolling the border each night. The troops are divided every morning and afternoon. The American soldiers are not allowed to leave their camp except on duty and during the hours of the day. They are kept busy in camp on details or police duty.

All the men here are in excellent physical condition. To date, not a man in the Los Angeles battalion has reported at the hospital.

The Colorado River water has been condemned for cooking and drinking. All the water used by the troops is handled by the railroad in tank cars and carted to the company streets in barrels.

Col. Schrieber has given his personal attention to his men's mess and while the life is coarse, the men are all well satisfied.

Capt. Warren J. Holden, commanding Co. A, was unable to get the two cooks for his company that he wanted, as the battalion left Los Angeles on such short notice. On the train coming down, W. E. Turner, a Los Angeles automobile man, and former first sergeant of the company, volunteered his services as a cook, and has handled the job like a veteran army kitchen mechanic.

SMALLPOX AT VERA CRUZ.

(BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND DIRECT WIRE-CLIPPING DISPATCH.)

VERA CRUZ, April 26.—Twenty cases of smallpox were found among the native population of the city yesterday. It is believed that fully twenty more will yet be discovered. The disease is a serious trouble in the city. The shore-duty battalions of blue-jackets from the South Carolina, New Jersey and the Hampshire, which have been quartered in the old cuartel, have been shifted elsewhere because of their proximity to the discovered cases.

Smoking, which broke out again, was directed at the scout cruiser Chester and the marine advance base on the coast. These are the ships which shelled the naval college during Wednesday's fighting, and there is bitter feeling against both. Both the Chester and the Prairie lie within easy rifle shot of shore.

MEXICANS LOOT ROSEDIA RANCH.

(BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.)

WASHINGTON, April 26.—An American, charged for a reliable source, who has just arrived at Eagle Pass, Tex., from Musquiz, a town in Coahuila, about 200 miles distant from Eagle Pass, reports that the Federal forces have taken from Rosedia ranch 250 horses, 150 mules and 11,000 cattle. The notice, according to the source, has been given that all American property in that section would be seized by the Federal forces.

VILLA'S PLANS
UNDER COVER.

General Denies, However,
He's Against Carranza.

Suggests U. S. Ships Take
His Army to Vera Cruz.

Rebels Erect Big Stands of Cotton at Juarez.

(BY DIRECT WIRE-EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.)

JUAREZ, April 26.—Contrary to general expectation reports received from the south today indicate that the anti-American sentiment manifested in many of the larger towns either is dying down or is being kept under control through the influence of Villa.

In commenting on the perfect order maintained in Juarez today in the face of threatened military operations, Villa took occasion to state that his remarks were "through with Carranza." He was misquoted, as what he intended to say was that he "was through talking of Carranza."

He also referred to his strictures on certain Americans and explained that his criticisms applied solely to his enemies and not to the great body of American people. He was still in as good temper because a local paper had published the report that Villa had thousands of soldiers concealed ready to strike at El Paso when the time became favorable.

He reiterated that the Americans would not fight because he said they would not have to, as mediation would solve the question. A Villa local organ seriously suggested today a lengthy editorial that the United States provide transports to convey Villa's army to Vera Cruz and then the rebels make the attack on Mexico City. Villa declared himself immensely pleased with the plan and intimated that he had inspired it. The scheme was never referred to in Washington. Army leaders at Ft. Bliss seem to be in a quandary as to what Villa intends to do and although the crafty leader occasionally professes great affections for the Americans, those who know Villa continue to assert that he is playing some sort of a game.

Further "precautionary measures" were taken by Villa's orders today. Great stands of cotton were placed at other strategic points. Counselor Garza insisted today that the cotton had been placed outside to keep it from being used by the rebels in the movement. Replies received from rebel agents in different parts of the country indicate that President Wilson will settle his quarrel with Huerta without additional bloodshed, said Garza.

The holding up of two aeroplanes already paid for by the rebels, created much criticism in military circles in Juarez today. Villa refused to answer the matter and ordered that hereafter all questions referred to publication must be submitted in writing. This order grew out of the fact that Villa had made a number of correspondents last night.

The arrival of the Sixth Artillery from Ft. Riley today has greatly restored confidence among some of the residents of El Paso who were frightened by the reports of an impending attack. It was officially stated that no word had been received from Carranza. Villa expects to leave the South tomorrow or Tuesday and there is a report that he goes right through to Torreón without stopping at Chihuahua to call on the chief.

A guest in the household of Gen. Villa disclosed tonight that the rebel leader had openly espoused the cause of the Americans just at this time for the purpose of obtaining 2,000 rounds of Mauser cartridges which were held up between New Orleans and El Paso on account of the re-establishment of the embargo. The munitions were being hurried to the border and Villa is said to have hoped to have passed the shipment here he was obliged to show his hand, his visitor said.

This would explain Villa's expressions of resentment when he heard that his air fleet also had been held up.

COMBAT SACRAMENTO PLACED IN COMMISSION AND IS EXPECTED TO LEAVE NAVY YARD THIS WEEK.

(BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.)

PHILADELPHIA (Pa.) April 26.—Workmen were busy all day at the Philadelphia Navy Yard preparing the combat cruiser for the trip to Mexico. It is expected the vessel will sail tomorrow.

The gunboat Sacramento was placed in commission today. Commandant Benson running up the American flag and placing her crew aboard. Commander Luke McNamee is in command of the Sacramento. The shipboard is provisioned and coaled as much as possible, and it is thought will leave the navy yard this week for the Mexican coast.

HOW MCKINLEY REFUSED SPANISH WAR MEDIATION.

RESIDENT WILSON'S acceptance of the offer of international mediation in the Mexican dispute brings out in striking contrast the declination of such an offer at the outbreak of the Spanish War, by President McKinley.

The latter's reply declared: "The government of the United States recognizes the goodwill which has prompted the friendly communication of the representatives of Germany, Austria-Hungary, France, Great Britain, Italy and Russia, as set forth in the address of your excellencies, and shares the hope therein expressed that the outcome of the situation in Cuba may be the maintenance of peace between the United States and Spain by affording the necessary guarantees for the re-establishment of order in the island, so terminating the chronic condition of disturbance there which so deeply injures the interests and menaces the tranquility of the American nation by the character and consequence of the struggle thus kept up at our doors, besides shocking its sentiment of humanity."

The government of the United States appreciates the humanitarian character of the communications made in behalf of powers named, and for its part is confident that equal appreciation will be shown for its own earnest endeavors to fulfill a duty to humanity by ending a situation the indefinite prolongation of which has become insupportable."

AIR MEN LEAVE FOR GALVESTON

Take Three Aerial Scouts from San Diego.

Six Officer Flyers Detailed for Expedition.

Machines Fully Packed for Expected Sea Trip.

(BY DIRECT WIRE-EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.)

SAN DIEGO, April 26.—Army aviators of the First Aero Corps, U.S.A., from the North Island aviation camp, with three powerful speed aerial scouts, left tonight at 8 o'clock for Galveston. In record time the immense task of dismantling the aeroplanes and crating them for over-sea travel was accomplished by 3 o'clock this afternoon. The departure of the aerial corps was delayed by waiting for the arrival of special passenger cars for the men.

Although officers and men at North Island camp and at the aviation barracks on H street have been eagerly waiting for orders to move to the front and were visibly pleased, the business of packing and making ready at the camp and at the barracks went forward in a matter-of-fact and business-like manner.

Orders were received last night at midnight from headquarters at Washington to proceed at once to Galveston and report to the commanding general of the second division duty.

While the aviation officers do not know what they will be detailed to do, but in anticipation of a sea trip to Mexico the aeroplanes were packed to be shipped by boat, which made the work of packing them much greater. To send the aeroplanes by rail it is only necessary to remove the wings, but for this trip the machines were taken entirely apart and crated.

There are six officer flyers under Lieut. B. D. Foulis, a detachment of thirty-eight men, the men of the First Aero Corps, and two civilian mechanics to go to Galveston. The army officers detailed to go, all of whom are flyers, are Lieut. T. F. Dodd, Lieut. T. D. Milling, Lieut. Joseph Carberry, Lieut. W. R. Tallaferr, Lieut. C. Wilde, the surgeon and Lieut. B. D. Foulis, in command. The detachment includes the cooks and other men necessary for a camp, besides the men to handle the machines.

The machines sent to Galveston are Burgess aeroplanes, which have a speed of about sixty miles an hour. They carry a driver and an observer when the machines are scouting, which is the use for which they are intended. It is thought by army officers of the camp that they will be sent to Vera Cruz. Besides the flyers each machine is manned with eight men.

It is a notable fact that among the aviators to go to Galveston with the speed scouts is Lieut. T. D. Milling, one of the most expert army aviators in the country. Lieut. Milling arrived here the past week and has just returned from a trip abroad, where he was sent by the government to study flying machines of France and Germany.

Capt. Arthur S. Cowan, head of the First Aero Corps, leaves tonight for Washington, where he has received orders to report. Lieut. R. C. Kirtland is left in charge of the North Island camp, and there are left there five officers, several aeroplanes and forty men in the aviation barracks on H street.

BORDER MINUTE MEN.

System of Signals Arranged Near El Cajon so Ranchers Can Rush to Danger Spot.

(BY DIRECT WIRE-EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.)

SAN DIEGO, April 26.—The merchants and ranchers about El Cajon, sixty miles from San Diego, have organized a company of 300 armed minute men, formed in command of J. P. Rogers, president of the Board of Trustees of El Cajon. Fifty mounted men have also organized. A system of signals has been arranged. It is said that if an alarm is sent out at least ten men can be called at any one place in fifteen minutes.

Between Lamesa and Descanso the ranchers in that vicinity fear Mexicans formerly employed on the Southern Pacific who are making for Mexico may attempt depredations and then make for the border, or that others going along the route often used by smugglers, may loot the towns.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 26.—One hundred and fifty blue-jacket apprentices from the most island training station boarded a train on Oakland pier at 1:25 p.m. today for Seattle. They will report on the receiving ship at Bremerton navy yard subject to assignment to any of the war craft leaving for Mexican waters.

The men who left today are ordinary seamen and coal passers. None of them has been in training more than three months. Chief Gunner's Mate G. W. Kershaw is in charge of the apprentices. There are still 300 sailor novices at Goat Island, but most of them have been in training only a month or two.

MONTEREY SEIZED BY REBEL FORCE.

(BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.)

WASHINGTON, April 26.—The Federal stronghold of Monterey has at last been captured by the Constitutionalists, according to a report today from the American Consul at Nuevo Laredo. He says information has reached him that Monterey was captured yesterday. All was quiet, he reported, in Nuevo Laredo, the fires having died out, leaving the business section of the town in ruins.

HOW CAPITAL RECEIVED NEWS.

Shanklin Describes Disorder in Mexico City.

Consulate Was Stormed by Noisy Mob.

Greater Danger Feared if Huerta Goes Away.

ST. ATLANTIC CABLE AND DIRECT WIRE—VERA CRUZ, April 26.—(Arnold Shanklin, Consul-General for the United States in Mexico City from February 19, 1909, until last Thursday, yesterday gave a vivid picture of conditions in the capital following the receipt of the news that the United States had made a landing at Vera Cruz.

"Up to the time of our leaving I could not obtain authentic information that would justify me in saying that any American had been killed or seriously injured," Mr. Shanklin began.

"It seems, however, to be well established, that one American, whose name I do not know, a street peddler, lost his life by being beaten to death in one of the downtown mobs. The demonstrations looked worse than they really were, estimated by their results."

"The results consisted principally in pulling down the Washington monument, stoning the Consulate, and affairs of that sort. I cannot venture an opinion as to the safety of the Americans remaining in the city, whom I estimate to be between 700 and 800 in number."

"Slight demonstrations began Monday night, when it came to be appreciated by the police that serious trouble was breaking between the two countries. It was Tuesday before the demonstrations became important."

"It was apparent that while the outbreaks were not officially countenanced, the government was not unsympathetic toward them."

"Characteristically, shutters began to be put up by Mexicans in the downtown business sections at the first signs of trouble. On Tuesday, the banks were closed, business, but with their shutters drawn and their doors guarded."

"The mobs at first were numerically small, but there were many of them. Gradually, on Tuesday, small groups of demonstrators betrayed a tendency to unite into formidable bodies. A better class of people began to participate; not the higher classes, but working men, clerks, school teachers and, especially, minor government employees."

"Tuesday night a mob tried to pull down the Washington statue, but succeeded only in ripping the bronze inscription plates from the pedestal. The target of all the mobs seemed to be any shop showing any indication of American ownership, but few offers of violence to American residences were made."

"A party of students, that had been responsible for most of the disturbances, went after the statue after smashing all the front windows and compelled several American men and women to shout 'Viva Mexico,' but did it good-naturedly."

"No attempt was made by officials to quell the mobs. There was little looting. For instance, one mob broke the shutters before the windows of Plak's Curio Shop in Calle Gante, where several thousand pesos worth of antique jewelry were displayed, but stole comparatively few articles. Thursday the police were still guarding the windows, while the jewelry lay in plain sight inside."

"The attack on the American Club came Wednesday. All that day and most of the night, as well as on Thursday, the central streets were filled with shouting, howling mobs of men, women and children, carrying Mexican flags, singing national anthems, yelling 'Viva' for Huerta. Death to the gringos and even more offensive epithets."

"An opinion I might venture as to the probability of any harm befalling Americans who are prevented from leaving the city by orders of the government would be purely personal. The worst may happen and it may not, but I believe it is better if all were safely out. The disposition and temper of the people as shown by their actions before we left were not pleasant, but the British and Germans have carefully planned an effective defense organization, of which Americans can take advantage."

"The consulate was attacked at midnight Wednesday, principally by boys in a crowd which was not large. The consulate is on the second floor of a large building at the corner of Avenida Juarez and Balderas. There were plenty of 'mueras.' Many windows were broken by stones and the roof, without entering the building, they made no attempt to do. I was asleep when I was aroused by the clatter of stones and the breaking of glass. I telephoned to the inspector-general de policia and within ten minutes a guard of gendarmes appeared and drove off the mob. The guard remained at the consulate until I left Thursday night. It was Wednesday night that the mob completed the demolition of the Washington monument, toppling it from its pedestal and dragging it about behind an automobile, finally dropping what was left of it against the Juarez memorial in Avenida Juarez just below the consulate."

"At midnight Wednesday the government took full possession of the cable office and issued strict orders that no American citizens would be allowed to send, receive cables of any nature whatever. I tried to transmit personal cables, but they would not allow me to do so. There were some slight anti-Huerta demonstrations, but they were quickly checked."

"It seemed to be generally believed that Gen. Rubio Navarrete, who was an ardent partisan of Felix Diaz, tried to organize a cuartelazo among the troops against Huerta. Statements have been made that Gen. Navarrete had been shot in National Palace, also that he had been sent out of the city on a special mission. At any rate he has disappeared somewhere."

"Threats were openly made that all Americans would be killed, but one must not place too much importance upon talk of this sort, as Mexicans are apt to say a good deal more than they mean. As we were going to the train Thursday night, in the railway station, a Mexican standing close by us was remarked: 'There are some Americans out of the country whom we Mexicans will not let stay in the capital.'"

"The chief trouble in the capital seems to me to lie between two contingencies, one is that Huerta may quit the city, leaving no one there to keep order and anarchy may prevail, or that the mobs may get a taste of blood by killing one or two Americans, which might lead to general bloodshed. I am more apprehensive for the safety of Americans in places remote from the capital than for those in Mexico City or in the larger places. Our people who are in small numbers in the Mexican communities are in the greatest danger. There is hope that Gen. Hargan Corona, who came down with us as part of our escort, may succeed in inducing Huerta to allow Americans in the capital to leave. This was his intention I believe after he had talked with Capt. Huse at a meeting under a white flag at Tejeria last evening. Huse flagged the way by calling the attention of Corona to the fact that Americans there were to hand over to him several hundred Mexican refugees from here, including the wife and family of Gen. Maas, thus showing our good disposition to provide protection for the Mexicans. Corona replied: 'I regret I have no authority to take up any matter with you, but I fancy he caught the point and I hope it may work out to the benefit of Americans who are still in the city. Unquestionably it is the belief and expectation of Mexicans and the government officials especially, that we intend to advance. They probably will be greatly surprised if we don't push on to the capital immediately. Public opinion in the capital is likely to be inflamed by stories of what happened here during the occupation on Tuesday and Wednesday, circulated upon the arrival there of Mexican refugees, who left here by train last night.'"

Good-by.

O'SHAUGHNESSY COMPLIMENTED.

BUT HUERTA NOTE TO CHARGE SCORES UNITED STATES.

Over the Signature of the Mexican Minister of Foreign Affairs Is an Attack Upon the 'Surprise' at Vera Cruz by the American Marines.

(BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.) VERA CRUZ, April 26.—The following is a verbatim translation of the Huerta note to Charge O'Shaughnessy by the Mexican Minister of Foreign Relations on April 22:

"Mr. Charge d'Affaires: 'Assuredly Your Honor knows that the marines of the American ships at war anchored off the port of Vera Cruz, availing themselves of the circumstance that the Mexican authorities had given them access to the harbor of the town because they considered their presence was of a friendly character, disembarked yesterday with their arms and uniforms and possessed themselves by surprise of the principal public buildings without giving time for the women and children in the streets, the sick and other non-combatants to place themselves in safety.'"

"This act was contrary to international usages. If these usages do not demand, as held by many States, a previous declaration of war, they impose at least the duty of not violating humane consideration or good faith by people whom the country which they are in has received as friends, and who, therefore, should not take advantage of that circumstance to commit hostile acts."

"These acts of the armed forces of the United States, I do not regard as a declaration of war, but as a violation of the duty of deference to the fact that Your Honor personally has observed toward the Mexican government and people a most strictly correct conduct, so far as that has been possible to you in your character as the representative of a government with which we have been in such serious difficulties as those existing."

"Regarding the initiation of war against Mexico, this ministry reserves to itself the right of presenting to other powers the events and considerations pertinent to this matter, in order that they as members of the concert of nations may judge of the conduct of the two nations and adopt the attitude which they may deem proper in view of this deplorable outrage upon our nation's sovereignty."

"The President of the Republic of Mexico has seen fit to designate, as I have the honor to communicate to Your Honor, the diplomatic mission which Your Honor has until now discharged. You will have the kindness to retire from Mexican territory. To that end I inclose your passports, at the same time informing you that, as is the diplomatic custom on such occasions, a special train will be at your disposal with a guard sufficient to protect Your Honor, your family and your staff, although the Mexican people are sufficiently civilized to respect even without this protection Your Honor and those accompanying you."

"I take this opportunity to reiterate to Your Honor the assurances of my highest consideration."

HUNT LINE BREAK.

American Engineer Accompanied by Mexicans Makes Futile Effort to Locate and Repair Telegraph.

(ST. ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.) VERA CRUZ, April 26.—Engineer

Gatwood scouted out along the Mexican Railway some distance beyond the lines yesterday morning accompanied by Felipe Mendoza, a native linesman, and Melville Cordua, an operator for the cable company, in an endeavor to locate and repair a break in the telegraph line, which has prevented communication between Mexico City and the United States.

Mendoza rode as far as the turn-out track and there was endeavoring to make repairs when he was seized by Federal soldiers. They lined him up to shoot him and were about to fire when a Federal officer arrived and ordered Mendoza released. The officer forbade making repairs, saying that the line was cut purposely by the Federals.

No mercy will hereafter be shown to snipers or persons caught with weapons in their possession. The death penalty will be inflicted summarily upon all offenders. Notices were posted today by order of Rear-Admiral Fletcher that all persons found with weapons will immediately be shot. Hereafter if any sniping occurs at night, the block in which it occurs, will be surrounded and every house searched, regardless of the social degree of the occupants."

TO THE VOTERS OF LOS ANGELES:

We recommend that you vote "NO" at the power bond election. The proposed power bond issue is not segregated, and thus is not intelligent.

We believe in a co-operative plan which will permit the city to place the city in position to buy the electric distributing systems covering the city instead of bonds.

The city's bonded debt is approximately $39,000,000 and there is pressing demand for more bonds for schools, city pressing demand for more bonds for schools, city pressing demand for more bonds for schools.

An immediate revenue to the city, under the absolute protection of the City Council is better at the present time than adding to our tax burden.

Revenue from the sales of aqueduct water and a sure income under co-operation place the city in position to buy the electric distributing systems covering the city instead of bonds.

STRIKERS CAPTURE CHANDLER

Strikers captured the Chandler coal camp of the Victor American Fuel Company in Fremont county today, according to reports to the Governor's office and marched toward the royal road mine, six miles and half from Canyon City, where the City Called a mass meeting, at which citizens organized for protection.

According to the Governor's advice seven men were killed in the Chandler fight, whether strikers

City with 300 militia. A telegram from Washington to Gov. Ammons intimates that the army could be taken on the question of sending Federal troops into the strike zone until requests and being made. The appeals have been made by the operators and by Gen. Ammons. It was understood that the army would be made tonight by officials of the United Mine Workers of America.

TROOPS ORDERED GO
(BY A. F. NIGHT WIRE.)

TRINIDAD (Colo.) April 24.—Adj. Gen. John Chase, with 300 men of the Second Infantry, Colorado National Guard, and a detachment of cavalry, commanded by Lieut. Wm. Chase, left military headquarters at Ludlow for the scene of the strike today. The Second Infantry division consists of Cos. A, C, I, K and L.

The troops reached reach Canon City this noon tomorrow. Gen. Chase said he expected to return to Ludlow in about two days. It is probable that many of the Federal troops may be left in Trinidad.

The adjutant-general of the department, Second Infantry, near Steamboat Springs, to come to the military camp at Ludlow.

Gen. Chase has taken the position that the strike is not an actual strike so far as the militia is concerned, but that the strikers agreed not to make any attacks during negotiations.

ROYAL GORGE ATTACKED.
(BY A. F. NIGHT WIRE.)

CANON CITY (Colo.) April 24.—Officers of the Second Infantry, for the force of strikers encamped near the Royal Gorge mine, two and a half miles south of the city, were attacked this morning by a party of 200 strikers, with Manager E. G. Betts and all the women and children of Royal Gorge, abandoned the city and came to Canon City last night.

Up until the hour of their departure today, the Royal Gorge mine attacked had been on the Royal Gorge property.

It was stated that, so far as he could learn that, the strikers had not occupied the abandoned property, though they were in the vicinity of the mine, and that the property had been on the Chandler property. He stated he would not return to the Royal Gorge mine until the State Militia which is expected tomorrow morning.

THREE SHOT BY STRIKERS.
(BY A. F. NIGHT WIRE.)

PUEBLO (Colo.) April 24.—Three men, employees of the steel mill in this city, were shot by strikers today. They were members of a party of twenty men on their way to Williamsburg in an automobile.

mine was dining at the Cafe Royce and, despite himself, he cast glances rather too frequently at an amazingly lovely woman dining with a man at a table a little way off. Suddenly the man rose, walked across and said, "May I ask why you are staring at my wife? Don't you think it is rather rude?" My friend, looking up at the stranger with a charming smile, murmured, "I was looking at the lady because she is so attractive."

The Railroad Men's and Women's Political Club of Southern California was organized Saturday night with a membership of 450 at the Republican County Central Committee headquarters in the Chamber of Commerce. The following officers were elected: W. K. Raphael, president; J. K. Raphael, secretary; D. W. Mellis, treasurer.

PLAN MILITARY SHOW.

Safe, Sane and Patriotic Fourth of July Suggested Showing Soldiers in Real Life.

Provisions looking to an exciting military show on July Fourth are being asked of the City Council by a military committee composed of Lieut. Col. S. M. Saltmarsh, Capt. James Gunn, Capt. R. A. Ford and Lieut. A. H. Woodbine, backed by Capt. H. Z. Osborne, of the Military Committee of the Chamber of Commerce.

Both the Chamber of Commerce and Merchants and Manufacturers' Association have officially approved the plan of Brig.-Gen. Wankowski and his associates for a military, patriotic and instructive celebration, in the shape of a military and athletic show at Exposition Park, and they desire the Council to promote the event.

All arms of the State military service are to be represented, drills, battle, marching, camping, and competitions in athletic sports being included in the programme.

While the guardsmen give their time and efforts liberally to the cause, the public may assist by contributing a small entrance payment, which will go toward fitting the barracks in the new armory with the most comfortable for the soldier boys, and at the same time give the citizens an opportunity of witnessing real soldier life.

SUSPECT INCENDIARISM.

Residence Without Fire for Six Weeks Is Partially Destroyed by Mysterious Blaze.

Fire believed to have been of incendiary origin partially destroyed a five-room residence occupied by Charles Winne and family at No. 1429 South San Pedro street last yesterday afternoon. The damage amounts to about $300, covered by insurance.

The home belongs to George W. Tigh, part owner of the Jones Transfer Barns in the rear of the place, and is occupied by Winne, his barn foreman. According to Winne, there has been no fire lighted in the house for the past six weeks.

and the Worst is Yet to Come

MADAME ISEBELL'S BEAUTY LESSON.

For the Adolescent Girl.
A former pupil sent her 15-year-old daughter to me with the request that I examine her, pronounce on the cause of her poor appearance and advise as to how to remedy it. As a child, the girl had been very attractive—dainty, fair of skin, with golden hair, but at 15 the skin was muddy and, examined under the microscope, found to be full of incipient blackheads; her hair had lost its gloss and was stringy and poor in color.

That was a year ago. The girl's skin is now normal and glowing with color, her hair soft and glossy; but it took a year of constant attention to remedy a condition that simply came from neglect. There is no time in the woman's life when beauty culture is so important as between 14 and 18, the period of adolescence. Mothers are not always aware of this fact, and girls too busy or too ignorant to care for themselves.

SKIN DISEASES OF YOUNG GIRLS.
At 14 there are glandular changes in the body and in the construction of the skin that render it peculiarly liable to skin diseases. If the outer skin becomes torpid so that waste matter is not properly eliminated, pores become clogged and what we term blackheads is the result.

Obstructions in the sebaceous glands or in the sweat ducts result in occasional pimples, or, if not arrested, in a state of chronic acne. This condition is sometimes accepted as inevitable at a certain period of a girl's life, which is a wrong assumption, for, while the skin is susceptible to trouble at this time, much can be learned the whereabouts of his brother, August Calderone, who worked here a few years ago as a carman. The man being sought is 30 years old, six feet tall and of medium weight. His brother's address is R.F.D. No. 1, Box 107, Independence, Mo.

DIET IN RELATION TO HEALTH.
A girl who desires a clear, healthy skin should drink not less than three pints of water daily and between meals. She should eat plenty of fruit and fresh green vegetables. Sugar and starch in excess are bad for the skin, and when there is skin trouble, cut candy out absolutely and reduce the amount of potatoes, rice and bread, replacing them with green vegetables and salads. Onions, spinach and dandelion greens are all good for the complexion and the juice, by diluting the blood, helps to break up a glass of hot water, two or three times a week, is a stomach tonic that reflects very quickly on the skin.

The growing girl should never take stimulants. Very weak tea may occasionally be indulged in, but I do not approve of the growing girl drinking among school girls and young women. Coffee will make any skin muddy in time, and even its occasional use is dangerous. Hot milk and hot chocolate agree with most girls and they have a decidedly beautifying effect on the complexion. (Lesson III to be continued.)

Clothing as an Insulator.

[The Lancet.] In dealing with persons suffering from electrical shock, if the victim remains in contact with the circuit his body must not be touched by the rescuer, but the latter may pull him out of contact by pulling on the clothing, or he may take off his own coat, insert his hands in the sleeves and then handle the victim with little or no risk.

Almost any article of clothing or material may be used, provided it is dry and of moderate thickness. Dr. Morton points out that death from electrical shock is only an apparent death at first, and that there is practically always a time during which it is possible to resuscitate the victim by artificial respiration.

PASTOR DRIVEN FROM CHURCH FOR FLIRTING.

Unfrocked by Religious Court-Martial for Attentions to Women.

Brilliant Young Shepherd of Glendale Flock Confessed Everything, Say the Trustees, Who Head Off Action by District Attorney by Instant Dismissal. Father of One Girl Nearly Uses Gun on Minister.

MEMBERS of the board of trustees of the West Glendale Methodist church stated yesterday that they were trying to flir with a young man and one little girl, Rev. M. H. Walton, 25 years old, married, has been lifted out of the pastorate of the church, chased from the ministry and is now living at Edendale with his wife and three children, where he is working as a carpenter.

The trustees further aver that Walton confessed what he called a congenital weakness and admitted some of the charges against him at a meeting of the board of trustees of the church and in the presence of Rev. F. D. Mather, presiding elder of the district.

The charges against Walton and the subsequent investigation by County Detective William Bright for the district attorney's office, have made Glendale into a new scandal and traveled rapidly from mouth to mouth.

Next Sunday the pulpit of the church will be filled by Rev. Mr. Hart, formerly of the Puget Sound Conference, who has accepted a call following the hurried dismissal and unfrocking of Walton.

RELIGIOUS COURT-MARTIAL. So far as The Times can learn, Walton, who did not deny the charges, was to be highly improper but not criminal. The Methodist church authorities are very strict about such things and will not stand for any trifling or flir. They acted promptly and put the church organization right, without delay or equivocation. Said one of the leaders of the Conference last night: "Mr. Walton was sadly wrong, but he did nothing criminal; there is no allegation that he did. Nevertheless we could not condone what he did."

At least eight women, all married, testified against Walton before a re-

No Banker Can Get Past Her Six-shooter.

Mrs. Nellie Baker and little Helen, whom she defended with a revolver from the child's father, an Arizona banker, when the latter came and tried to take the child from the home of its grandparents.

All Ready.

LADY SAYS SHE'LL USE A SHOTGUN NEXT TIME.

AT HER home in Huntington Park yesterday Mrs. Nellie Baker, sister-in-law of Ernest Harley, a banker of Globe, Ariz., made no effort to deny the sensational charges of gunplay which the Arizona makes in a suit filed after his unsuccessful attempt to get possession of the little daughter, Helen, now in the custody of her grandparents, William G. and May Rutledge, in that suburb.

"I certainly did use a pistol when Helen's father tried to take her away from me," said Mrs. Baker, "and it was a loaded one, too. But I did not get the revolver until I was forced to by Mr. Harley."

Mrs. Baker said that Harley and his father came to the Rutledge home at a time when they knew there would be no one but Mrs. Rutledge and herself home, and that Harley snatched the little one while the father kept the two women away. Then it was, Mrs. Baker says, she got the revolver and pointed it at Harley. She says he let go of the child and the grandmother whisked it away to another room.

Mrs. Baker says that her mother took little Helen after the death of the child's mother on the birth of a second child, a son, now in the care of Harley's parents. She thinks the affection which the grandmother lavished on the baby girl saved her reason and says the grandmother has been a mother to the little one.

"Helen calls her 'mother' and between the two there is the strongest tie," said Mrs. Baker. "My father is well able to care for Helen and should have her until she reaches an age when she can judge for herself. My brother-in-law's new wife is a charming woman, but she is only 19 and too young to care for another's child."

Mrs. Baker is the wife of W. F. Baker of Omaha, and is visiting her parents for the summer. She is a very quiet little woman, but very determined. She said yesterday that she still has the pistol and will use it again if necessary. There was a glint in her eyes that promised excitement for Harley should he again attempt to secure his small daughter by force.

Upon a detailed comparison of the system contemplated by the city with those now used by the three companies now in Los Angeles, I have reached conclusions that are not favorable to the reliability of service resulting from the system contemplated by the city under the present bond issue of $6,500,000. HER STOCKING TELLS A TALE.

Escaping Delinquent Nabbed With Dalton's Address.

Directed to Office of R. H. Norton, Supervisor.

Two Days After Former Quit at Juvenile Hall.

Some time ago two little girls tried to escape from Juvenile Hall and make their way to a waiting automobile.

As the two girls leaped from a window they fell into the waiting arms of Intermediate Matron Sarah Boyce and Miss Clara DuBois, assistant matron at Juvenile Hall.

The girls were searched and in the stocking of Nettie Gillette, aged 17, was found a slip of yellow paper and a key. Upon the paper was written the following address:

"229 Merchants Trust building." Juvenile officers went to the address and found the law office of Supervising Attorney R. H. Norton and the headquarters of the Norton anti-recall campaign committee. Harvey B. Dalton, one of Norton's campaign managers, was in charge of the office.

But Miss DuBois and Mrs. Boyce had run through a hall, out of a door and around a wall, and when they reached the waiting automobile containing two men.

Changing the usual procedure of locking up the girls for the night the officers locked the doors of the two girls last. As soon as the doors were locked the girls dashed to the windows, raised them and leaped out.

The raising of the windows rang an alarm bell. But Miss DuBois and Mrs. Boyce had run through a hall, out of a door and around a wall, and when they reached the waiting automobile containing two men.

Last Monday the committee began to inquire into conditions of incompetency and management at Juvenile Hall. At that time Superintendent Edwin S. Eby was asked if he knew of the discovery of Dalton's address in the stocking of one of the girls. He said that the story was preposterous.

Later, however, Miss DuBois related the whole story to him and to members of the Juvenile Court Committee, showing the yellow slip of paper containing the address and the key.

Although various members of the committee have discussed the incident with the officers of Juvenile Hall will throw any light upon the matter, preferring to wait until Tuesday, when the committee resumes its sessions.

By High Authority. This happened on the night of April 2, two days after Dalton left the county service as assistant superintendent of Juvenile Hall. The matter was brought to the attention of the authorities until a few days ago. It is now being investigated by the Juvenile Court Committee.

DECLARES CITY POWER PLAN IMPRACTICABLE. Late Engineer of Power Development Bureau for the Government Reclamation Service Files Report With Federated Improvement Association Saying the Bonds Will Be Useless Unless Greatly Augmented.

WILLIAM VAN DEN HEUVEL, late engineer of the Power Development Bureau of the United States government's Reclamation Service, has filed a report with the Federated Improvement Association of Los Angeles, unfavorable to the reliability of the system proposed by the city under the $6,500,000 bonds to be voted on by the people May 8.

Van Den Heuvel was electrical engineer of the Power Development Bureau of the Reclamation Service during the construction of the Roosevelt Dam, the Minidoka development in Idaho, the Strawberry Valley project in Utah, and of the Yuma project in connection with the Laguna Dam.

He states in his report that the single transmission system planned, and with no steam plant to be built in the city, there will be no guarantee of regular service from the aqueduct power. The full text of the report follows:

UPON a detailed comparison of the system contemplated by the city with those now used by the three companies now in Los Angeles, I have reached conclusions that are not favorable to the reliability of service resulting from the system contemplated by the city under the present bond issue of $6,500,000. My reasons are:

(1) The present equipment of those involved will be dealt with according to their deserts.

Officers investigating the case said last night that they knew the names of the two men who waited in the automobile.

Nettie Gillette is now in Whittier. She was sent to that institution April 6. The Riddley girl, rated an incorrigible, is still at Juvenile Hall.

Miss DuBois, assistant matron of the institution and in direct charge of the female inmates, did not report the incident or the discovery of the Dalton address to her superiors for the reason that she wanted to get at the very bottom of the story and learn from the girls what led them into an attempt at escape.

Neither of the girls would talk to Miss DuBois, however, for several days and it was not until yesterday that the authorities were put in fair way of getting the real evidence that may result in the filing of serious charges.

Superintendent Eby said that no hint of the matter reached him until he inquired of the outside last Monday. He said that he had never heard the story, although at that time it was more than two weeks old. Later, however, he made a thorough investigation and he and others at Juvenile Hall will continue that investigation.

Heretofore the Juvenile Court Committee had been investigating the alleged lack of efficiency at Juvenile Hall, and the members decided informally to dismiss Superintendent Eby and other employees of the county.

When some of the former boy inmates learned yesterday that Superintendent and Mrs. Eby were likely to leave the Juvenile Hall they pooled their pennies and purchased a pretty vase which was presented to the Elys with quite a ceremony.

ANSWERS FINAL CALL.

Woman Prominent in Social Life in Southern California Passes Away in This City.

Mrs. J. K. Snow, Jr., wife of a prominent rancher in Ventura county, died early this morning. She has been undergoing treatment for cancer. She was 50 years old and is survived by two sons, Norman and Robert, her husband, H. K. Snow, Jr., two sisters, Mrs. J. Elton Lang, of this city, Miss Laura Snow, of Santa Ana, and a brother, William Wall, also of Santa Ana.

The funeral will be held tomorrow at the home of Dr. J. Elton Lang, No. 1735 Crenshaw boulevard. The funeral car will convey the body and relatives and friends to the cemetery, where interment will take place. Mrs. Snow has for many years been a prominent part in the social life of the county and is well known throughout Southern California.

After having equipped the motor bus with bedding, liquors and food, the party left the city late at night to camp for the night in Topanga Canyon. The police had been informed of the intended party and were also informed that it was to be a picnic.

FIVE-HOUR BATTLE TO HALT GREAT PIPE LINE.

Fashionable Folk of City of Beverly Hills Line Up in Front of Aqueduct Steam Shovel and Fight Its Progress Foot by Foot Into Their Corporate Limits—Restraining Order Temporarily Ends War.

CONTESTING the progress of excavators at every step, firing rattling volleys of words across the imaginary line that marks the boundary of Beverly Hills, the city of Los Angeles yesterday bitterly resisted the advance into their corporate limits of the city's forces that are laying a main connection from the aqueduct to the municipal water mains. After five hours of resistance they checked the invaders with a restraining order secured in a hurry from Superior Judge Works. The battle lasted from 11 o'clock a.m. to 4 o'clock p.m.

When the ditch reached the edge of the unsurveyed road, the workers were met with a command from the Beverly marshal to halt in the name of the law. They still advanced, but at a snail's pace, and the marshal's men, with their rifles, stood by. The unremitting ditch-diggers piled their tools, undermined the surveyor and brought him with his instrument tumbling into the ditch. Then a wagon, with two horses, property of Beverly Hills, was rushed into the breach. Workmen of the city forced a pipe into the line of advance and the wagon was halted.

The horses, however, were taken to the front. Picks and shovels flew, the ground crumbled from under them, and the animals went down with a mass of earth on top of them. They had to be dug out.

THREATENS FIST WORK. Seeing every artifice fail, Councilman C. B. Anderson of Beverly Hills informed Attorney W. B. Mathews, a leader of the city forces, that he was about to drive his automobile into the wash.

"I'll have you arrested by your own marshal," Mathews retorted. "Then, if I'm arrested, I will be for punching your nose," Anderson retorted.

All the trouble is about a gap of forty feet that exists in the right of way secured by the city for the 68-inch steel pipe which will connect the aqueduct with the municipal mains. The gap is the crossing of Cold Water Canyon road, which exists

GREAT RICHES.

A Glendale woman offers to furnish a million rose buds for the May Day celebration at Washington Park. She is rich indeed to be a millionaire of roses!

CLINGING THINGS.

They are in all the shop windows. No bone in the dresses this year, they say. Maybe the world will now get a chance to see a little of the beauty of women.

THE LIGHT AHEAD.

Smokers at Pasadena have been forbidden the enjoyment of tobacco on street cars, but let them not be cast down! Neither public sentiment nor city ordinance can prevent their smoking in the next world.

OTHER PEOPLE'S CHILDREN.

They do not exist. All the children in the world are yours if you will love them enough to deserve them. A wealthy couple at Pasadena were touched by a published account of the condition of two orphans and transferred them from a public home to their own mansion. They will be rich now as never before, these good people who have invited into their little palace of luxury the light of children's eyes and the music of childhood's laughter.

SOCIALIST SUNDAY-SCHOOLS.

The Sun of New York recently reported the proceedings of a Socialist Sunday-school. There are sixteen such in New York City. The method adopted by the teachers, who "only want to make the children think," is to put parables before them. In one of the parables a great giant is represented as doing a lot of harm to a lot of people, and oh! at last the giant is killed, as he deserves to be. Then the teacher cunningly holds up the capitalist as a giant who oppresses the laboring man. What ought to be done to the giant capitalist, asks the teacher, and all answer promptly, "Kill the giant."

Why is it that a Haywood or a Goldman can revile the flag and prompt others to do likewise? We meet on every hand thoughtful people who say: "Let them alone, they can do no harm. We must have liberty of speech and liberty of the press at any cost." Voltaire, the French infidel, knew better. "Lies! Lies!" he wrote. "Some of it will stick!"

MANY STOCKHOLDERS OF SMALL MEANS.

A Socialist speaker in Boston is reported as saying: "During the recent Lawrence textile strike the mill owners refused to grant two loaves of bread a week to their employees, but they declared a dividend of 60 per cent. to stockholders." How many Lawrence mills did anything of the kind? "The whole scheme of dividends is wrong," continued the speaker. "Dividends should cease." This sort of talk, it need hardly be pointed out, is foolish in the extreme, as the Providence Journal says.

The idea intended by such vapors is that stockholders are a rich class, set apart from the community from the wage-earner, whereas the fact is that thousands of laboring men and women have become stockholders in a modest way and are vitally concerned in any such menacing outburst as this. The number of dividend-receiving stockholders in the United States is yearly increasing, and it is highly gratifying that this is so. It gives a constantly larger number of persons a material stake in the prosperity of the country.

PATRIOTS AND SCOUNDRELS.

Horace Walpole, who enjoyed the unenviable distinction of being the Theristes of the eighteenth century in British politics, is reported to have said that patriotism is the last refuge of a scoundrel. He probably meant that a hypocritical assumption of patriotism is the last refuge of a scoundrel, for he was a master of English and not accustomed to use it loosely.

True patriotism is inconsistent with scoundrelism. A man who loves his country and is willing to sacrifice and fight for it cannot be a very bad man. Well has the poet said:

"Breathes there the man with soul so dead Who never to himself hath said
 This is my own, my native land?
 Whose heart aches to hear that far-off bell Rung
 As home his footsteps he hath turned
 From off a foreign strand?
 If such there breathe, go, mark him well,
 For him no minstrel raptures swell;
 High though his titles, proud his name,
 Boundless his wealth as wish can claim,
 The wretch, concentred all in self,
 Living, shall forfeit far renown,
 And, doubly dying, shall go down
 To that vile dust from whence he sprang,
 Unwept, unhonored and unsung."

The gratifying feature of present conditions in this country is the outburst of patriotism with which the American people of all sorts, conditions, creeds and politics have rallied to the support of the flag in the present crisis.

The one shameful, disgraceful exception of cowardice, and unpatriotic action and utterance, is that afforded by the Socialists, who, with veins filled with ice water instead of warm blood, gather around their soap-box orators and listen to their dreary drivel and mad resolutions denouncing predatory wealth and loathsome capitalism as the authors of the war.

There should be prompt punishment of these many undesirables. If there is no section of the Criminal Code fitted to their case the services of the San Diego lighted-cigar-terminal-adornment experts might be invoked, with a preliminary punishment that would be most dreaded by its recipients—that of a bath.

THE OFFER OF LATIN AMERICA.

The acceptance by the United States (and perhaps by Huerta) of the kindly offer of Brazil, the Argentine and Chile offers a possibility that there may be a mediation that will avert the further progress of the war which has already begun. Such mediation, to be of substantial value, must include complete pacification, not only between the United States and Mexico, but between Huerta, Carranza, Villa and other bandits, who are seeking to seize or to hold the offices and the opportunities of plunder which they covet.

Whether there exists, or can be developed from Mexicans who have not participated in any of the revolutions which began with the expulsion of President Diaz, the material for complete pacification is a problem. If the Latin-American nations which intervene can create a new Mexico, based upon the fundamental doctrine of protection to the lives, liberty and property of all men, citizens and foreigners, and the establishment and maintenance of regular and orderly processes of government, such as exist in civilized countries, then Brazil, the Argentine and Chile will not only save a waste of blood and treasure, but will earn the gratitude of Mexico and of the United States, and the thanks of the nations of the world.

If the proposed mediation shall fall then the situation, so far as Southern California, Arizona, New Mexico and Texas are concerned, will be an exceedingly serious one. It will be one that will need intelligent comprehension and prompt and decisive action. The losses and injuries of the war will all fall upon the people of the States named. The Atlantic, the Mississippi Valley, the Rocky Mountain and the Northern Pacific States are absolutely free from any danger of invasion or depredation. But the border States are in danger of both, not by the organized force of a responsible nation, but by guerrilla bands whose purpose is not to advance a cause, but to indulge in individual pillage and to scatter with their plunder as soon as their object is accomplished.

To adequately garrison and protect a frontier of a thousand miles from the kind of attack which the Mexicans will pursue would require a force of several hundred thousand men.

There is today practically no Mexican nation in existence. There is no real Congress or other legislative power to enact laws; there are no courts to interpret them, no executive officers to enforce them. There is no adequate power with which a treaty of peace could be made. One might as well talk of a treaty with the grizzly bears of the mountains, or the coyotes or rattlesnakes of the desert. A treaty with Huerta would not be recognized by Carranza, or a treaty with Carranza by Villa, or a treaty with Villa by Zapata. Stretched along the border are a dozen opulent cities and thousands of ranches stocked with cattle, horses and sheep. The Mexican side of the line is not similarly situated. The capture and occupation of the City of Mexico would not aid the protection of the border.

Apparently the only way to protect the border would be to remove it a long distance southward. It would not be difficult to drive all hostile Mexicans out of Lower California, Sonora, Chihuahua, Durango, Nuevo Leon and Coahuila, and occupy the intervening country. Then the bandit forces would be obliged to limit their operations to their own territory and Ensenada, the Imperial Valley, Nogales and the New Mexican and Texan towns would be safe from looting and destruction by fire, and the border-farms would be exempt from raids. Such seizure and armed occupation would not necessarily involve a permanent possession of the country occupied.

If the interposition of Brazil, the Argentine and Chile shall fail, then, unless border protection shall be given, a serious, even if a temporary, injury may be inflicted upon the commercial interests of Los Angeles. The border country is a part of our trade empire. We supply to those who dwell along the Mexican line, from the Pacific Ocean to the Rio Grande, many millions of dollars worth of merchandise and machinery per annum. We furnish Northern Mexico a market for its output. Our citizens are largely interested in mines, railroads and ranches there.

The establishment of peace and orderly government in Mexico means more to Los Angeles than to any other community in the United States.

CO-OPERATION IS THE HOPE OF LABOR.

Some of the workmen of this country have been induced by union leaders to believe that the employing interests are hostile to them. There has been engendered in the minds of these workers the idea that they can expect nothing from the employing interests. That is not the truth. Its falsity should be demonstrated. What should be taught the workers is that the employing interests are their best friends, and that they will use and do use their every effort to assist labor in legitimate ways. It is to their interest to do so. Whenever the interest of labor is promoted there the affection of labor should and will be.

"There is in this country," said Judge Speer at Trenton, N. J., to the Manufacturers' Association of that State, "a growing unrest and discontent. We cannot shut our eyes to that. It exists everywhere and has a sound basis. In forty years the population of this country has doubled, the wealth has quadrupled, and the exports have quadrupled. The discontent of the laboring classes arises from the fact that they believe that the wealth of the country is not equitably distributed, and there is some reason for that belief."

Now, then, what are we going to do about it? In times like this demagogues are bred. Each morning's paper produces the picture of some Senator or Congressman who wants to get his name in the paper by proclaiming that he is the man who is going to put teeth into something; that he is the man who is going to make somebody sweat, somewhere; that he is the man who is going to turn the screws on and investigate somebody or something.

Now, what can be done to benefit labor? There is a vast department of industry which requires regulation. It is the department where equality of the conditions of competition is to be brought about in order that humans may not be at the mercy of the mercenary employer. There are men who are willing to work men to the last ditch in unsanitary shops; to employ women and children where they ought not to be employed. Sometimes giving them poor light, poor ventilation and long hours. Here the government should step in and say: "There are men who desire to run their factories conscientiously and safely, and in order to give them an opportunity to do this you who are willing to run your business without conscience must be regulated in order that the humane man may compete on an equal footing." That is the first thing to do.

Workmen can be welded to employers by a policy of fostering and promoting their interests. Nothing could be wiser, even if only upon the ground of self-interest, than for employers and others to adopt this policy.

The whole system of labor-unionism today, with some brilliant and conspicuous exceptions, rests upon a false economic foundation. Labor-union leaders endeavor to create a labor monopoly to control the supply of labor and to regulate the prices and hours of labor without increasing the production. It is manifest that no permanent progress can be made on behalf of labor if one attempts to raise wages without increasing productivity; because the raise in wages will simply mean an advance in the price of the product. We are engaged not only in competition among ourselves, but in competition among the markets of the world; and we cannot let our productivity fall if we expect to maintain our position among the nations of the world.

The whole tendency of industry in the world is toward fierce competition and the only way we can retain prestige is to increase our productivity as the productivity of the rest of the world increases. Manufacturers are too complacent, thinking that so long as business is prospering the country will take care of itself. The mere construction of the Constitution is of slight worth in comparison with the spirit with which it is administered. The people have to be alive to the problems of the country and not leave it to the I.W.O., the Socialists and the syndicalists to attempt to settle them. Do not blame them unless you are active and trying to do something. Co-operation should be the watchword of the hour, and in co-operation between employer and employee is the hope of labor. In short, co-operation should be the effort of all the thinking men of the country. By co-operating American capital and labor can outstrip the capital and labor of any other country in the world.

NEW NATURE STORIES

Friendly Wild Animals.

[London Express:] "Fear of man is merely an acquired characteristic of animals. It is only after animals come to know man that they are afraid of him," said Dr. Chalmers Mitchell, secretary of the Royal Zoological Society, in a lecture at the Authors' Club recently.

"People who have gone into foreign parts where wild animals exist have found that they are not afraid of man. Practically any kind of wild animal, if sufficiently intelligent and kept in a proper reserve, would soon make friends with man."

"Especially is this the case when we begin by taking the animals and segregating them while they are young. We then find that they quickly get on terms of affection with us."

"In recent years the steepest of birds have made their homes in London parks, because they know that they cannot be shot there. Wood pigeons, for instance, have come to London and will often feed out of one's hand in these natural reserves."

"The greatest enemy of wild animals is the systematic naturalist, who is most zealous in obtaining any specimen that is nearly extinct. If we exclude him from the reserves it will be possible in a short space of time to go to any of them and make friends with the wildest of animals."

The Sea Hedgehog.

[Philadelphia Telegraph:] One of the ugliest little creatures of the sea is the hedgehog of the ocean called the Globe Fish. The Globe Fish has fins and a tail speckled with tiny spots like a polka dot shirt, and he is all armed with prickly spines, quite as unpleasant as any land hedgehog you have ever seen.

Master Globe Fish is one of the few creatures of the deep that is quite safe from enemies. He fills himself with air—Puff!—and protected by his deadly spikes, floats like an ugly little balloon wherever he will, quite unharmed.

are poisonous for men, and this makes his flesh very dangerous for us to eat.

Tigers Show Gratitude.

[Westminster Gazette:] When one of the tigers in the Zoological gardens, Dublin, was threatened with gangrene in its paw, the Rev. Samuel Haughton, M. D., undertook to perform the dangerous experiment of operating on the animal.

The mate of the tiger was first secured in a side den. A net, devised by Prof. Haughton, was thrown over the tiger and he was drawn forward to the door of the cage. Four stout keepers then held the tiger of the struggling animal, while Prof. Haughton cut away the diseased claw.

The suffering beast furiously but vainly tried to get at him during the operation, but the rage of the tigress looking on through the bars of the side den was much more terrible to behold. She roared and violently flung herself against the barriers in her desire to go to the rescue of her mate.

When the tigress was admitted to the cage after the wound of her mate had been dressed, she turned up the paw and examined it with touching solicitude, and then licked her mate, as a cat licks her kittens to soothe him, purring softly the while.

But perhaps the most extraordinary part of the affair was the sequel. A week later Prof. Haughton was again at the zoo to see how his patient was getting on. When the animal espied him, he began to purr like a cat, allowed him to examine the paw, and seemed pleased that he should do so. Indeed, for years afterward the tiger and tigress showed themselves most friendly and grateful to Prof. Haughton.

Insects Live in a Trance.

[Washington Post:] One of the most curious inhabitants of the insect world is what is known as the stick insect, about which Prof. Schmidt of the Imperial University of St. Petersburg has been making some strange discoveries.

This insect remains in a quiescent state during the hours of daylight. Until now it has always been supposed that this was slumber, but Prof. Schmidt says it is really a state of catalepsy, or trance, which the insect has developed as a means of protection against its enemies.

When one of these trances the insects will remain for hours in the most abnormal positions—standing on their heads, flat on their backs, or with their legs extended high in the air and the body arched in the form of a bow. Only some prolonged excitement of the nervous system will rouse them from this rigid cataleptic state, but when the trance is over they show no signs whatever of muscular fatigue.

The stick insect passes all its days in a trance and feeds at night on the foliage of the plants where it lives.

IN THE GARDEN.

WALT MASON IN THE TIMES.

Come into the garden, Maud, from your daisy bed and snug; for the springtime is abroad, and one garden must be dug. Come into the garden, do, and you'll know what labor means; we'll till the long summer through, and harvest a pint of beans. The winter's also ran, spring's here, with its wrens and doves; so come with your sprinkling can, and come with your leather gloves. The call of the soil is heard, the call that old Adam knew, and though it's a thing absurd, we'll toil as our neighbors do; our labor is all in vain, we know, ere we do a stroke; all useless the stress and strain, and the garden is a joke. For cutworms will take the corn, and chinchbugs destroy the peas, as sure as that we were born to fool with such tasks as these. The hail will destroy the beet, and also the succotash, and when we desire green eats we'll buy them and pay the cash. But come to the garden, Maud, regardless of things like these; get close to the fertile soil, and crawl on your hands and knees. Come forth to this verdant scene, away from your Persian rugs! Oh, come with your Paris green, to kill the potato bugs!

Taking Lessons From John D.

[St. Louis Republic:] William Rockefeller has just won another fight, and this time he accomplished it without the aid of a sore throat.

Finds Many Such.

[Chicago News:] Hall: What are you doing now? Gall: Oh, I'm making a house-to-house canvass to ascertain why people don't want to buy a new patent clothes wringer.

EMPIRE BUILDING.

BY ALMA WHITAKER.

"And Caesar was ambitious." Empire building is no sin. It is one of the most natural laws of human nature. From the beginning of history no country has become great and prospered without developing this empire-building instinct; without stretching out and acquiring more territory and still more territory, citizens and still more citizens, responsibilities and still more responsibilities.

It is one of the inflexible laws of life. From the individual right through the nation every man craves success, prosperity, property, growth, aggrandizement. As the individual prospers he acquires property and still more property, assumes larger responsibilities—a wife, a home, an automobile, stocks, land, bonds, large commercial enterprises.

As a city prospers it extends its boundaries, amalgamates, annexes smaller cities, bids for greater population, builds, and takes upon itself more and still more of the nation's responsibilities.

And so with nations since the world began. The United States is not exempt from this natural instinct—California, Texas, Arizona, the Philippines, Alaska, Panama, these were but tentative trials of strength, tentative essays in empire building, and as each proves more successful than the last this acquisitive instinct grows in confidence and fearlessness. We may call it patriotism, disinterested protection of weak communities, intervention in the cause of peace, or by any other comfortable name that seems to fit the situation—in other countries, notably England, we prefer to call it land grabbing—but it is none the less empire building, the natural instinct of the great to own and manage the small. It is helpful sometimes to see ourselves as others see us, and the United States is ever under the watchful and critical eye of the other great powers of the world. It is a common sneer that inhabitants of the United States should calmly annex the title of Americans when they are but a part of the northern continent. Nevertheless it is likewise commonly accorded them. An "American" never hails from anywhere else. The rest of them are Canadians, Mexicans, Colombians, and so forth. That in itself is an ominous sign.

And it is noteworthy that while newspapers on this side of the Atlantic explain the present Mexican situation in all the lofty, delicate ways that we know so well, European, yes, and Oriental cynics, too, shrug their shoulders and murmur, "Empire building."

Friend Shakespeare reminded us that "Twere better to be vile than vile esteemed," so, even if this war is loftily innocent, the United States will never get the credit for it, any more than England will be credited with peace and civility and the little Boer expanse that cost her so dear, or Italy over the Tripoli affair. Uncle Sam may as well resign himself to that. And if now he were to beat a dignified retreat and wash his hands of the whole affair he would unquestionably be regarded as a fool for his pains.

There is a firm conviction among a large section of the English people that the United States means to own Canada at no distant date. Taft's famous reciprocity bill created an uproar in the whole British empire for no other reason, and it was freely spoken of as the "thin end of the wedge." Canadians here in Los Angeles held an agitated meeting to that effect, and sent a memorial to London.

Spain and France are equally convinced that America means to own Mexico—and hate her for it. Great Britain is, in general, quite amiable about it, since she can't take it herself and she has vast interests there that would be safer under United States than Mexican rule.

So while a number of serious people are holding up their hands aghast at the fact that this great country should have gone to war over such an apparently trivial incident, and that the people should be apparently enthusiastic and thrilled at the prospect, it is obvious that this great nation is really cringing to a thoroughly human and natural state of mind.

Now that she is fairly embarked on the enterprise it is plain that the United States cannot retreat until she has placed a sound, sensible government in power in Mexico, over which she will necessarily maintain control as a British in Egypt. In order that it may remain sound and sensible, Mexico will prosper exceedingly under such a government, and the rest of the world will be only too ready to concur in such an arrangement—in the self-same way that Britain is allowed to remain in possession of Egypt. It is the logical finale to the building of the canal and the acquisition of the Canal Zone—for which twenty-five millions of dollars will now be paid in good conscience money.

The reason the Mexicans hate the Americans is because such things are inevitable. The Boers hated the English in just that way. The strong man can always command respect, but divil a bit of love coges his way. Only the English love England, but a fifth of the world is governed by her and pays her tribute.

Too Many Medical Students.

[Indianapolis News:] The rapid and continuous increase in the number of medical students at the Austrian universities is occasioning serious concern among practitioners, many of whom are already accused of making a living. There are 600 medical "freshmen" at Vienna University this term, constituting a "record" figure. The Vienna Medical Association is collecting statistics of the number of practicing doctors in Austria, with the object of inducing the ministry of education to adopt radical measures to restrict entries to the medical departments of the universities.

The World's Smallest Coin.

[Indianapolis News:] Doubtless the smallest coin in the world circulates in the Malay peninsula. It is simply a thin wafer made from the fleshy juice of a tree, and has current value of about one-tenth of a cent. In the southern parts of Russia the peasants use a coin of such small value that a quarter of a million of them are worth no more than $1.25. The old Japanese mouseng was worth one-hundred-and-twelfth of an American cent. In Portugal the reis is the lowest standard of value, but no one-reis pieces are coined. A 2-reis piece is equivalent to six one-hundredths of a cent.

Gambling in France.

[Indianapolis News:] Statistics recently published have shown that the attempts of the law to discourage gambling in France by limiting the number of casinos and enforcing restrictions on players have tended only to increase the total of the money that annually changes hands on games of chance. Statistics show a slight falling off in betting on the races. The race-going public invested more than $75,000,000 in bets at the booths of the official pari-mutuel in 1913, as against $81,000,000 in 1912, which was the highest total ever bet in a single year. Gambling in clubs is, however, increasing year by year.

SOUTHWARD THE STAR.

Southward the star of empire makes his way.
 Dim sentinel above the dust and smoke
 It hangs upon the threshold of a day
 As yet undawned. But when that day
 Has broke,
 A backward people, throwing off the yoke
 Of heavy ignorance, with opened eyes
 Shall see the heavens unfolding in a cloak,
 Shall see the northern constellation
 High o'er the southern cross, in dark tropic skies.

Southward the flag; it stands for peace and light.
 Not to confuse—to lead, to guide, to bless;
 But blinded heathen, groping through such night,
 Know not its meaning—cannot even guess
 Why freedom comes in such a dress.
 Nor see, behind the thunder claps of lower,
 The sun of hope. To end a long and dark hour,
 We who have fought the light, we who have wielded the power.

Southward the star! Above the sun and gun.
 The rattling rifles and the flash of war
 Above our serried ranks of fighting men
 Above the shock that makes the earth reel,
 Our flag still holds the promise and the goal.

As did the star of old. It comes to us
 The light of freedom; some day to be
 The message given to the heathen world
 "Glory to God, and peace on earth; good will to men."

The Baseball Season Is Beginning to Hit Its Stride.

MALARKEY IN GREAT FORM.

Holds Hard-Hitting Seals to Brace of Hits.

Skeeter Fanning Is Walloped Once More.

Lefty Leifeld Wins in the Afternoon.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]
SAN FRANCISCO, April 26.—San Francisco lost the first series of 1914 today, when Oakland although breaking even on the day's performance, blanked the Seals, 1 to 0, in the before-breakfast session. The final was not so bad, however, since the locals, with Leifeld pitching the best ball he has shown, shut out the Commuters before a big crowd in the afternoon by a 2 to 0 tally. At that, it left the hard fighting Oaks on the long end so far as the week is concerned with four games to three.

Lefty Leifeld was at his best in the afternoon, and although he allowed ten hits, good fielding, with Roy Corhan doing the stellar stunts, kept the bases fairly well cleaned. Jake Geyer demonstrated his slow ball for the Oaks and aside from the one inning in which Howard's men put away their two runs, he was away from the scoring line.

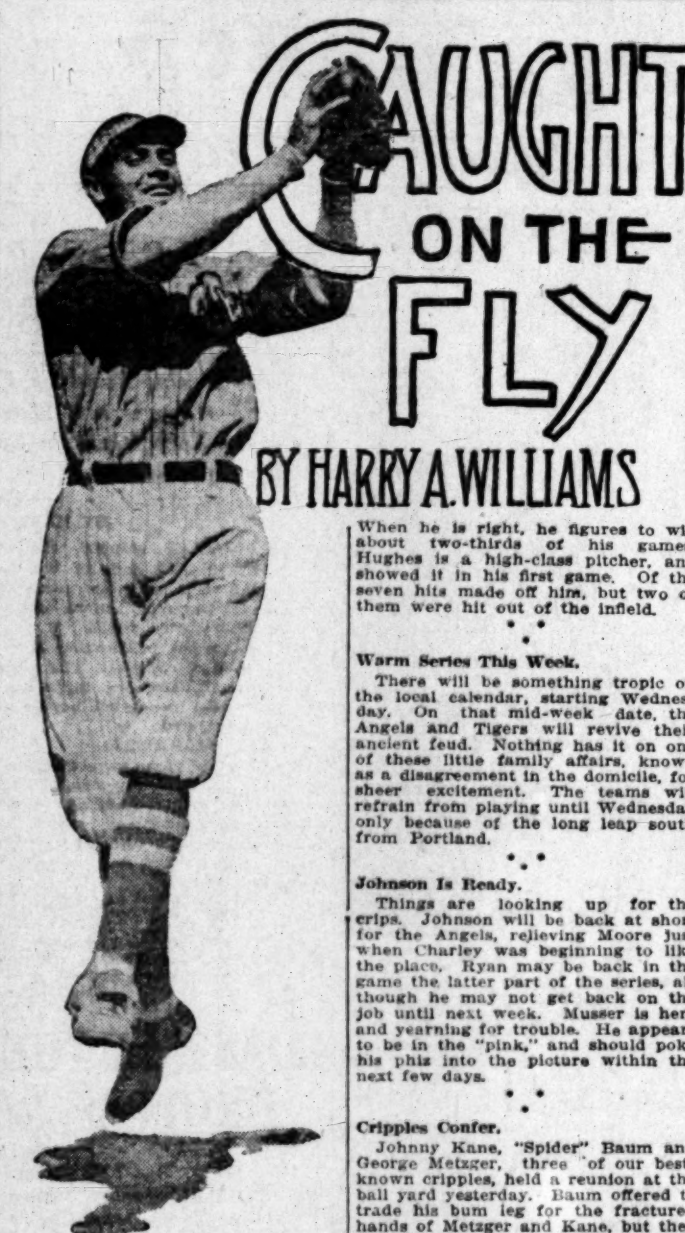

A NEAR HOMER.
Save for a little hard luck, Zacher would have been down in the home-run column. In the eighth, he landed squarely on a ball that just failed to clear the top of the right field fence. The run gathering was confined to the third. Schaller grounded out to second and Downs hit the first pitched ball over the center field fence. The sphere never faltered and Zacher threw his glove in the air as an indication that it was bound over the fence and out of sight. Mundorf drew a pass, and Charles smashed to center. The sign had been given for the hit and run and Mundorf scouted for third, landing just ahead of the ball. Corhan worked the squeeze play and Charles scored.

A RALLY.
Coming into the ninth with two hits apiece and a row of goose eggs on the score board, the Oaks staged a rally that brought over the only run of the game and set a monster early-morning crowd wild with enthusiasm. It broke up one of the tightest pitching duels that you will see for many a day to come.

Skeeter Fanning and "Buffalo Bill" Malarkey combined to lead the Seals to the finish there was little to choose between them. They were turning back the batters in one-two-three order. Skeeter was twirling in his old time form until the ninth, when he dished out a base on balls to Malarkey. That was a bad omen, and Quinn promptly laid down a sacrifice bunt. Guest rolled one toward short that hit Malarkey on the run and it made two down. Middleton's single to left made the occasion dangerous again.

The count reached two and three before Zacher slapped one to the left of short. Both runners were in action at the wind-up and there was excitement galore. Corhan got in front of the drive, but while he was fumbling it around Guest kept right on his way and arrived home safely, as the shortstop continued to boot the ball. It was tough luck for Fanning after pitching such air-tight ball, but at last he paid the way for his defeat with the base on balls he doled out to Malarkey.

BY HARRY A. WILLIAMS

When he is right, he figures to win about two-thirds of the time. Hughes is a high-class pitcher, and showed it in his first game. Of the seven hits made off him, but two of them were hit out of the infield.

Warm Series This Week.
There will be something tropic on the local calendar, starting Wednesday. On the mid-week date, the Angels and Tigers will revive their ancient feud. Nothing has it on one of these little family affairs, known as a disagreement in the domicile, for sheer excitement. The teams will refrain from playing until Wednesday only because of the long leap south from Portland.

Johnson Is Ready.
Things are looking up for the crimps. Johnson will be back at short for the Angels, relieving Moore just when Charley was beginning to like the place. Ryan may be back in the game the latter part of the series, although he may not get back on the job until next week. Musser is here and yearning for trouble. He appears to be in the "pink," and should poke his phiz into the picture within the next few days.

Cripples Confer.
Johnny Kane, "Spider" Baum and George Metzger, three of our best-known crimpes, held a reunion at the ball yard yesterday. Baum offered to trade his bum leg for the fractured hands of Metzger and Kane, but they turned him down cold. "Spider" says his sick limb is coming along nicely. "Speck" Harkness also was present. He says that his salary whip will soon be in a state of health and happiness.

Don't Make Runs for Chech.
Charley Chech was feeling right optimistic yesterday. He feels cheerful over some of the things that befell him prior to that. Up to Saturday, his mates had scored but one run for him in two even innings, so it didn't make a whole lot of difference what kind of ball he served. No pitcher can hope to win unless his pals collaborate.

Roy Gill in South America.
Roy Gill, who was imported by Henry Berry from the Middle West in 1910, along with Criger, Roth and a bunch of others, has quit baseball for the oil business, according to his brother, Dr. Warren Gill, of this city. Roy's connection with the oil business is composed largely of manual labor. He is now sinking holes into dear old mother earth down in South America.

Gregory in Good Form.
Howard Gregory claims to be in better shape than at any time since landing on the Coast several years ago. When Gregory came West he was warehousing a colony of malaria germs, and until this season was unable to eject them. Gregory pitched some great ball for Oakland under Volvortan, and aspires to do the same thing in Sacramento.

Can't See the Seals.
Berry is unable to see the San Francisco club in its present position, he figuring that it does not belong there. "The Seals are playing away over their heads," says Hen. "They simply ran amuck with the bat, and got all of the breaks. This thing can't continue. Leifeld was the only pitcher who would have meant runs today and he carried a rabbit's foot in his left shoe. Pernell must be getting by on his good looks, for he didn't seem to have anything else."

HOW THE STATE CARES FOR FISH AND GAME IS SHOWN.

WITH exhibits of live game and fish and mounted specimens, not only of California, but all American game, the coming Outing and Sportsmen's Show that will be held under an immense tent at Fiesta Park next month will be of educational value, as well as being an interesting and spectacular show.

The sportsmen of the entire West are rallying to the support of the show and Manager Walter Hempel is flooded with suggestions and offers of assistance.

Five thousand square feet has been allotted to the State Fish and Game Commission, and one of the big features of the show will be this display of every variety of quail in their natural element, trout and deer. The fish exhibit will show the propagation of the fish from the egg to the full-grown trout.
